Mt. Baldy tunnel mishap kills young cyclist, hurts pal

A 14-year-old Chino boy was killed and his companion severely injured when they were struck by a car as they pushed their bicycles through the lower tunnel of Mt. Baldy Sunday morning.

The victim, Randall Anthony Fulton of 12455 Holly Court, was pronounced dead at Pomona Valley Community Hospital 45 minutes after the accident. His friend, Philip Gwozdy, 14, of 1408 W. D St., Ontario, was in the intensive care unit at the hospital this morning in fair condition.

The California Highway Patrol reported that the two boys were struck by a northbound car driven by William R. Smith, 19, of 1310 Halinan St., West Covina. The 500-foot tunnel is unlighted.

After the accident the Mt. Baldy Fire Department applied the resuscitator and cardiac pulmonary resuscitator to the Fulton boy until the ambulance arrived. A spokesman for the department said there have been numerous similar accidents in the tunnel.

Randall was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Fulton. He was a native of California and moved to Chino from Redlands 10 years ago. He was a ninth grade student at Don Lugo High School, Chino, where he was a member of the Don Lugo Hiking and Climbing Club.

Besides his parents, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Don P. Carlo of Chino; a brother, Robert A. Jr. of Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Celia Estrada of Mentone; his parental grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Fulton of Bakersfield; his great-grandmothers, Mrs. Felicia Estrada and Mrs. Amalia Grillo, both of Riverside, and a nephew, Joseph R. Carlo of Chino.

Services are pending at Griffith Mortuary, Chino.

Nobel Prize winner predicts

Rx for cancer within 10-20 years

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Prof. George E. Palade of Rockefeller University in New York City predicted today that mankind will conquer cancer fairly soon — perhaps within 10 to 20 years.

The Romanian-born Palade, 62, co-winner of this year's Nobel Prize for medicine, told a news conference, "The problem is how to make the cell defense system more efficient as we do now against bacterial infections.

"One way or another, work is progressing and there is hope that in the near future we will solve the problem."

He went on to say it was risky to make predictions but added, "My uneducated guess is that it will take 10 years a more realistic figure.

"We have to educate our guesses, or we may be cheating the public by saying five years. At this time we are still searching for the basic facts before the solution."

Palade said thanks to the electron microscope and two decades of work, "We now know how a cell is organized. Within the cell there are organs which have been isolated and studied and we know in general the ways how the cell functions."

"The major diseases in our time are degenerative diseases," Palade said. "Most are malfunctions, like cancer and vascular disease and now we have the promise of a rational approach as a first step to bring them under control. It is already happening."

Palade emigrated to the United States after the second World War and became an American citizen. He is a professor of cell biology.

He shared the 1974 Nobel Prize for medicine with Dr. Albert Claude, a native of Belgium who is also an American citizen, and Dr. Christian de Duve of Belgium.

All three scientists have been affiliated with Rockefeller University. They were cited by the prize committee "for their discoveries concerning the structural and functional organization of the cell."

Claude, 75, said research was also progressing on the possible prolongation of human life.

"If we can find the code, then we could multiply by two and extend man's age double," he said, adding, however that at the present time it would not be practical since the world is already overpopulated.

$902,000 bad check cashed

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A bogus Los Angeles city treasury check for $902,000 was cashed in New York City two weeks ago and another 13 checks are unaccounted for at the city's computer center, it was reported today.

The Los Angeles Times said funds from the $902,000 check may have been transferred to a Paris bank.

Meanwhile, City Controller Charles Navarro said a city worker must have helped rig the computer to pay $2.5 million from the treasury in a thwarted plan believed tied to Mafia interests.

C. Erwin Piper, chief administrative officer for the city of Los Angeles, confirmed that the $902,000 check had been cashed but he said the city had received payment.

Navarro said he didn't know who would stand the loss for the check "but I'm pretty certain it won't be the city."

The check was made out to and deposited with Crocker International Bank at 72 Wall Street with the designation that it was for transfer to the Banque de Paris.

It carried the same date, Nov. 18, 1974, that was on three checks totaling $2.5 million which were not cashed.

Navarro also confirmed that additional checks are missing.

"There is a total of 17 checks involved," he said. "The one cashed in New York, the three totaling $2.5 million and 13 others that we cannot account for."

Navarro said Sunday that a city worker must have helped in the bogus check scheme.

"It couldn't be anyone from outside," he said, noting that nobody is permitted in the heavily guarded Data Services Bureau area that controls the computer's check-writing functions without a special badge with a photograph.

He said whoever planned the theft knew enough about the city's operation to write three checks instead of one for the whole $2.5 million, because the plotter knew seven-digit check would come under closer scrutiny.

The computer was programmed to pay the money to two New York City firms and one in Chicago, which investigators said turned out to be phony firms, or names similar to real businesses but listed under a false address for delivery of the checks.

District attorney's investigators said they were investigating the city treasurer's office today to find out who was behind the scheme, which was intercepted by a tip to a congressional investigating committee.

They were looking for evidence of earlier possible thefts here or in other cities.

Auto chief says

Slash income tax by 10%

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. Chairman Henry Ford II today suggested an immediate across-the-board income tax cut as the medicine the nation needs to lift the economy out of recession.

In a year-end statement, the Ford executive said Congress should act quickly and order a 10 per cent reduction in withholding for all of 1975. That would increase disposable personal income by more than $1 billion a month.

While suggesting a tax break for Americans, Ford renewed his call for an increase in the federal gasoline tax to help reduce petroleum consumption. He said both would help restore consumer confidence in the nation's leadership.

"Consumers have stopped buying because they are afraid things will go from bad to much worse," Ford said. "Washington must take steps that will persuade the people that the nation still has control of its fate and is not drifting helplessly into deeper and deeper trouble."

The auto industry already is in a severe recession and heading toward a depression that could engulf the rest of the economy, Ford warned. He said there is no reason to believe the economy will pick up by the middle of 1975 unless some decisive steps are taken now.

"The important thing right now is not to balance the budget, but to give the economy a boost that will be strong enough to lift the nation out of recession—but not so strong or lasting in its effects that it will lead to a new spurt of inflation a year from now," the Ford executive said.

Ford's year-end outlook came as industry analysts predicted new car sales will slump even further in December to the lowest point since the slump in mid-September of last year. Ford said the poor sales in the fourth quarter of 1974 could carry well into 1975 if no action is taken.

He predicted, however, that sales next year should be around the 8.9 million cars sold this year, including imports—almost 23 per cent below the record 11.4 million of last year.

Morton tells parley on fuels

New energy plan to change U.S. life

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton said today the government was attempting to forge a new national energy policy that will influence American lifestyles for the remainder of this century.

"There is no alternative to establishing a national energy policy. We cannot afford not to act," Morton said as he opened a three-day State Department seminar on energy.

Morton said that the government was searching for a policy that "will effect the way Americans work and live for perhaps the rest of this century."

He urged spirit of "official candor and public participation" in the development of the policy.

Morton said U.S. energy consumption cannot continue to grow at 4 to 5 per cent a year. He said the United States was currently paying $18 billion annually for imported oil and only a few countries had a "dominance of supply and control of prices."

Today's hearing is focused on consumer concerns and was chaired by Virginia Knauer, special assistant to President Ford for consumer affairs.

"We hope this seminar will lead to a better understanding of the American people that we do have a crisis," she said. Mrs. Knauer said that the goal was "an equitable policy for all. The public needs to know that burdens or sacrifices are equally shared."

She said she hoped the hearing would bring about public support and understanding of a national energy policy.

The discussions attracted witnesses representing a wide range of consumer interests. Among them were representatives of farm blocs, urban areas and American Indians.

Subsequent hearings will focus on business concerns, resource development, environmental and conservation, concerns and inter-governmental concerns.

Most of the statements by consumer representatives focused on public distrust of the energy problem and concern about people at the low income levels.

"People believe they're being ripped off," said Lee White, chairman of the Energy Task Force of the Consumer Federation of America. White said that he feared many oil and gas companies looked to federal deregulation of natural gas prices as "the golden moment."

In other developments, two U.S. senators in Los Angeles Sunday attacked the high price of Arab oil, proposing either a total ban on oil purchases from Arab nations, or the conversion of cold war alliances into economic defense pacts.

"We can't build a world for our children facing east on our knees," said Sen. Lowell Weicker. He said the United States should stop all purchases of Arab oil and learn to live without it through rationing.

Sen. Alan Cranston said NATO and SEATO should be converted from military alliances against communism to mutual economic aid pacts to defend the industrialized nations from bankruptcy at the hands of the Arab-dominated oil cartel.

MOTHER OF SEXTUPLES

Charlotte Lange, 26, who gave birth to sextuplets in San Jose Sunday, beams during a visit with her mother, Mrs. James Duty, right, and her sister, Leslie Perry. The new mother began taking fertility drugs after losing quadruplets a year ago. Her husband is a guard for an armored car firm. One of the sextuplets died a few hours after birth.

Five sextuplet survivors are not out of woods yet

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — "The doctor told me I would probably have triplets," said Mrs. Charlotte Lange, 26. "When the fourth and fifth and sixth ones were born I was completely shocked."

The sixth and smallest of the sextuplets — rare even for women using fertility drugs — died within four hours of his birth Sunday. He weighed only 1 pound, 15 ounces.

The surviving three boys and two girls were reported in "fair" condition today and all of them were in respirators.

"They're not out of the woods by any means," said Carl Heinze, hospital spokesman. "The next two days are crucial."

Dr. James Harrow, director of newborn services, said, "It's going to be up and down this week" because the babies all have hyaline membrane disease, an oxygen absorption problem common among premature babies with underdeveloped lungs.

Mrs. Lange's obstetrician, Dr. Vincent Nola, said she bore quadruplets a year ago but none lived and she and her husband, Alvin, 29, had been childless.

"We knew by X-ray that we had three infants," Nola said of the births Sunday. "I thought there might be four. But after the fourth one was born it was apparent there were two more to be born."

The weight of the surviving sextuplets — 2 to 2½ pounds — was good for their 27-week term, Nola said, and they were born naturally without surgery.

Doctors said the small boy who died was in critical condition almost immediately after his birth at O'Connor Hospital.

The other five babies were taken to nearby Valley Medical Center and put in the care of a special neo-natal team.

Mrs. Lange was reported in excellent condition and her husband went home to rest after the all-night wait in the hospital, a hospital spokesman said.

Holdup man dies after beating by angry mob

CHICAGO (UPI) — Larzell Thompson, 22, died Sunday of injuries inflicted by a mob angered by the shooting of a customer during a grocery store holdup.

Authorities said a mob of 20 to 40 persons attacked Thompson Friday as he and two accomplices fled from the El Barrio Food Mart following the robbery and shooting.

Gelasio Gonzalez, 31, the customer he allegedly shot, witnessed the mob scene, police said.

Police said Thompson entered the grocery, robbed the store, then demanded more money from Gonzalez, 31, and told Gonzalez he was going to kill him. Thompson placed his gun near Gonzalez' head and fired, wounding him only in the left hand.

Thompson and his companions fled the store with $338 in cash, but Thompson tripped about a half block from the store and was pounced upon by the pursuing mob.

Both Thompson and Gonzalez were taken to St. Mary's Hospital. Gonzales identified Thompson as the robber. He was charged with armed robbery and remained under police guard until his death.

Judge defends release of teens freed in drug raid

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The presiding judge of the Juvenile Court Sunday came to the defense of probation officials who immediately released more than 100 teen-agers rounded up in a sweep of high school drug sellers last week.

The releases brought angry outcries from police, politicians, school officials and the parents of some other students.

"I am proud that they (juvenile probation authorities) performed their station tary duties in a professional, responsible and completely legal manner in the face of community and political passion and emotions," said Judge William Hogoboom.

"Juvenile as well as adult law presumes the innocence of the accused," he said, and probation officials acted under a strict legal requirement to release the prisoners unless it could be shown they were a danger to the community.

"In the case of those minors released after the mass drug arrests last week, no evidence presented to the court indicated that it was necessary to detain minors because they posed a danger," Hogoboom said in a letter to the County Board of Supervisors.

Hogoboom was one of those asked to report to the board about the quick release of the teen-agers, prior to a discussion of the controversy Tuesday.

More than 150 high school students, accused of selling drugs to other students, were arrested as the result of an undercover operation using youthful looking police officers who posed as high school students for three months.

Police complained that the arrested students were back in school while the undercover officers were still posing as students, revealing their true identities, and in one case assaulting the officer.

Police said probation authorities broke a promise to hold those arrested for at least three days, to allow time for the arrest record to reach school authorities, giving them legal grounds to suspend the drug dealers.

School officials complained that the arrested students were back on campuses the next day, swaggering like heroes.

State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger and others called for tightening juvenile laws. The county board said supervisors had been deluged with complaints and asked for reports from Hogoboom. Police Chief Edward M. Davis, the superintendent of schools, city attorney, county counsel and Acting Chief Probation Officer Clarence E. Cabell.

Hogoboom said that "the juvenile court is a court of law" and "detention of a minor...is stringently controlled by state law. The minor may only be detained if it is a matter of immediate and urgent necessity for the protection of the minor or the person or property of another. Otherwise the minor shall be released."

HOME FOR THE WINTER

Sea gulls have returned to their winter home in the Rhine River area at Assmannshausen, Germany. Gulls flock to the location from the North Sea coast of Germany and The Netherlands as winter sets in and food becomes scarce in the North. The gulls seem very content in their winter quarters.

Area children will be guests at Music Center

Some 94 fifth-graders from two Pomona parochial schools will be guests at the 10th anniversary celebration Tuesday at the Music Center in Los Angeles.

These boys and girls are 10 years old.

In the group will be 59 children from St. Joseph School and 35 from St. Madeleine School.

Mrs. Fionan Gannon, cultural chairman at St. Joseph, said they will travel by bus and be accompanied by teachers and parents.

Two fifth-grade teachers and six parents will accompany the children from St. Joseph. Lay teachers will accompany the children from St. Madeleine, Mrs. Gannon said.

The St. Joseph children will attend an 11:45 a.m. program, and the St. Madeleine children at 9:45 a.m. program.

Mrs. Gannon said invitations to attend the programs were arranged through the Los Angeles Archdiocesan Education Committee.

Council and school board plan meeting

Chino city councilmen and school board members will meet in joint session Tuesday at 7 p.m. at Don Lugo High School to discuss items of mutual concern.

On the school board's portion of the agenda is adoption of a resolution for the sale of $915,000 in construction bonds. Revenue from the sale would finance several proposed building projects.

Also, the staff at Don Lugo High is expected to explain the year-round program at the school in a special presentation.

Young motorcyclist, 4 others crash victims

An unlicensed 13-year-old motorcyclist was among four persons injured in Pomona traffic accidents during the weekend.

The youth was being followed by a Los Angeles County deputy sheriff when the motorcycle hit a curb and a street light pole at La Verne and Armour avenues Saturday evening.

The youth, Keith A. Eden, Pomona, suffered a broken jaw, cerebral concussion and cuts and bruises. He was reported in fair condition today at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Police reported that the rider apparently was trying to evade Deputy Dennis J. Miller, who had begun to follow him after seeing him traveling without lights on the wrong side of Arrow Highway.

A 3-week-old child was injured in a two-car collision Sunday evening at Indian Hill Boulevard north of San Bernardino Avenue. The victim, Robert J. Mohler, was released after treatment of a mouth injury at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The victim was in a car driven by John D. Mohler, 29, 9815 Monte Vista Ave., Montclair, when it collided with a car driven by Harold V. Bishop, 22, of Rialto. Neither driver was hurt.

Thirty-one-year-old Rudy Carmona, 748 S. White Ave., Pomona, suffered facial injuries when his car hit a curb and a tree in the 400 block of E. Phillips Boulevard early Sunday. Carmona was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and transferred to Park Avenue Hospital.

Police said Carmona told them that the accident occurred when two youths in the car began hitting him. They fled after the accident, witnesses said.

At 1:15 a.m. Sunday, Jessie Douglas, 25, of 235 Grove Ave., Pomona, suffered a forehead injury in an accident at Holt Avenue near Ganesh Boulevard.

He was treated at Pomona Valley Community Hospital and transferred to County-USC Medical Center.

The other driver, Angel V. Barragan, 26, 550 Fillmore Place, Pomona, wasn't hurt.

Area accidents injure 4 people

Four persons were injured in two traffic accidents in Ontario over the weekend, police reported.

Sunday evening, Julia Takeuchi Obszarny, 25, of 129 Armstrong Way, Upland, was admitted to Doctors Hospital in Montclair after her car was struck from behind by a car northbound on Mountain Avenue. Mrs. Obszarny was listed in good condition this morning.

Police said the second car was driven by Robert Franklin Nicoll, 17, of 12214 Mountain Ave., Chino. Nicoll and a passenger in his car, Mayo Torres, 18, of West Los Angeles were also slightly injured in the accident but not hospitalized.

In an accident Saturday on D Street near Cucamonga Avenue, Hazel Adele Long, 52, of 429 N. Holmes St., Ontario, was slightly injured when a car she was driving went out of control and crashed into a utility pole. Mrs. Long said she reached down to pick up her dog on the floor of the vehicle when the accident occurred. Mrs. Long was treated and released from Ontario Community Hospital.

Injured man still 'poor' at hospital

Mike Ricottone, the Chino High School teacher who suffered major injuries from an explosion at the school last week, remains in poor condition at Tustin Community Hospital today.

Hospital officials reported this morning that the 24-year-old auto body shop instructor is still in the intensive care unit and little hope is given for his survival.

Man, 35, charged in threat on officers

A 35-year-old Ontario man has been charged with threatening police officers with a knife after a car crashed into the rear end of another car on Euclid Avenue north of the Pomona Freeway in Ontario Sunday.

Ronald Paul Abbott of 2514 S. Euclid Ave. was booked in the West End Jail on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon on police officers and on traffic warrants.

Abbott, according to Ontario police, was riding in a car with his wife Sunday when it crashed into the rear of another car. A California Highway Patrol officer reported the accident to police. When CHP officers and police arrived at the scene they found that neither Mrs. Abbott, the driver of the vehicle, nor her husband was injured.

Police later learned that the car struck by the Abbott vehicle had been parked at the location several days and had been reported stolen out of Riverside.

2 motorcyclists slightly hurt in separate crashes

Two unrelated motorcycle accidents causing minor injuries to the riders occurred north of Upland within three hours of each other Sunday night.

Danny R. Holton, 16, of 340 E. 25th St., Upland, was passing a car driven south on Euclid Avenue, north of 24th Street, when his headlight went out. At that moment the driver of the car, Charles L. Aronhalt, 26, of 9930 Placer St., Cucamonga, started a left turn and the two vehicles collided. Holton did not require hospital care.

In the second accident, Stephen J. Innerbicher, 15, of 107 W. Arrow Hwy., Upland, escaped with minor injuries when his motorcycle collided with a car driven by David L. Boehm, 32, of Cerritos at Prospect Avenue and 25th Street.

Innerbicher was treated at San Antonio Community Hospital and released.

Schools should guarantee better performance--Riles

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Taxpayers should receive a guarantee of better performance by schools before educators ask for more money, according to state schools chief Wilson Riles.

In remarks Sunday to the California School Boards Association and the Association of California School Administrators, Riles said more than $1 billion will be needed over the next five years to support the state's public schools.

"I am simply saying that those who will foot the bill are going to expect us to do even better if they provide us with more money," Riles said.

CELEBRATING THE EUCHARIST

Three of the women priests ordained in Philadelphia a few months ago celebrated the Eucharist at Christ Church (Episcopal) Sunday. About 90 persons at tended the service as the Reverend Carter Heyward, left and Rev. Allison Cheek administer communion to the congregation, as part of the church rites.

Tustin High School marching band is big winner in Christmas parade

In the annual Christmas parade Saturday night, Tustin High School won the sweepstakes award and $100 with its marching band.

The band was one of 13 which marched down Holt Avenue Saturday night.

The Christmas parade is sponsored by the Pomona Jaycees.

with second place going to Alta Loma High School and third place to Claremont High School.

Don Lugo High School in Chino won first place in the drill-team competition. Fountain Valley High School won second place in the drill-team division and Alta Loma High School won third place.

Politics

Democratic convention

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The Democrats left Kansas City today with a new party charter, some old-fashioned party unity and burgeoning confidence that they are on the road to the White House in 1976.

The party ended its unprecedented national mini-convention Sunday with national chairman Robert Strauss' triumphant declaration — "We have brought the Democratic party back to life ... the Democratic party is ready to govern America again."

The three-day meeting produced the first formal constitution adopted by a major U.S. political party.

In the course of writing it, the party's principal factions also rediscovered they could deal with each other without leaving the scars that since 1968 have doomed efforts to regain national leadership.

But the convention did not bring to the fore the party's most significant need — a clear front-runner for the 1976 presidential nomination.

A pack of hopefuls wooed the 2,500 delegates and alternates in the cavernous Kansas City auditorium and the convention hotels, but no one of them made an impact strong enough to establish a favorite in the nomination sweepstakes.

Only one announced candidate, Rep. Morris Udall, D-Ariz., was on hand. But two others soon to declare — Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia — competed for delegate attention with him and with Sens. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, Robert Byrd of West Virginia, and Alabama Gov. George Wallace.

Republican convention

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Republican party reformers Sunday approved a plan to encourage — but not require — state organizations to seek more party membership among minorities, women, youth and old people.

Both the Republican plan and the one adopted by Democrats in Kansas City bar any use of a quota system in delegate selection. But the Democrats required an "affirmative action" program, while the Republicans only encouraged one.

The GOP version was adopted Sunday by the "Rule 29 Committee," set up by the party's 1972 convention to reform party rules.

It still needs approval by the national GOP committee, the convention rules committee and the 1976 national convention itself before it takes effect.

The Republican national committee will have no direct power to require recruitment drives. But those states that comply will be almost assured of surviving challenges to the credentials of their national convention delegates.

In order to win unanimous approval of the Rule 29 Committee, sponsors of "positive action" to recruit minorities make it clear that states refusing to go along with the drive would not lose their convention seats on that basis alone.

The key compromise provision was that failure to produce greater minority participation will not, by itself, be a ground for disqualifying a state's convention delegation.

Strikes idle thousands

Coal

Picketing by striking mine construction workers today idled thousands of coal miners who expected to return to work following agreement on a new three-year wage contract.

United Mine Workers members refused to go to work at mines where the construction workers posted pickets — in most cases one or two men.

The construction workers, although members of the same union, work under a separate contract. They build the mines, shoring up the inside with timbers, installing electrical wiring and maintain the mines. The main stumbling block to agreement on a new contract is money.

Negotiations on a new contract for the 6,000 construction workers recessed in Washington at 7 a.m. EST following an all-night session and were to resume later in the day. A UMW spokesman said some progress was made.

The mine shutdown was nearly 100 per cent effective in Pennsylvania, where only one shaft at U.S. Steel Corp.'s Robena mining complex south of Pittsburgh was reported working.

Milk

NEW YORK (UPI) — Striking milk deliverers and plant workers defied their union and rejected a new contract Sunday, leaving the city virtually without fresh milk again today.

John Kelley, president of the 2,800 United Teamsters Local 584, said the members voted 1,007 to 487 against the pact, just 10 votes more than the two-thirds majority required to reject a contract.

The strike, which began Wednesday night, has affected 10 million consumers in New York City and some of its suburbs. Deliveries to hospitals and nursing homes, however, were not interrupted.

Buses, boats and planes

Workers have grounded the planes of one airline, halted the buses of the city's largest city, and docked the boats that serve Washington State's Puget Sound.

Weekend talks in St. Paul, Minn. between officials of Texas International Airlines and the Airline Employees Association have brought little progress. More talks are scheduled for today.

The strike affects 22 Texas cities, eight other states and four Mexican cities. The airline normally carries 6,500 to 7,000 passengers daily.

In Houston, a federal mediator said a bus strike there could extend through the rest of the Christmas shopping season and into next year because neither side appears willing to give in.

A 23-day-old bus strike in the city of San Antonio ended during the weekend, however, and thousands of passengers crowded on board to get downtown to get their Christmas shopping completed.

In Seattle, Wash., meanwhile, sightseeing boats and an historic steamer were chartered as the Puget Sound faced its first workday without ferry service today.

About 900 port workers belonging to four locals of the International Longshoremen's Association began picketing the Port of Boston today after working for two and a half months without a contract.

Greeks reject king by 7-3 margin

ATHENS (UPI) — Thousands of chanting Greeks danced in the streets today, celebrating an overwhelming, two-to-one referendum vote to reject the monarchy.

"Let's turn the palace into a school," celebrants shouted as Athenians converged on downtown Constitution Square, waving flags, blowing car horns and shaking hands.

Greeks voted by a resounding 69.2 to 30.8 per cent margin in Sunday's referendum to live in a republic and abolish the 142-year-old monarchy.

Final results gave the republic 3,236, 345 votes to 1,443,804 for the monarchy.

The republicans won large margins in the traditional monarchist bastions of southern Greece as well as in the country's antimonarchist urban centers.

The decision cleared the way for the Greek parliament, holding its first session today, to begin work on a new constitution and prepare for presidential elections.

King Constantine, who fled into exile during the military dictatorship, learned the results in seclusion at his home outside London. An aide said he planned to issue a statement today.

"We don't need a king, we want to be free," 19-year-old student Nicos Georgopoulos said in Constitution Square, where Greeks had gathered in 1843 to force their first king, Otto of Bavaria, to give them a constitution.

Constantine Caramanlis, Greece's conservative premier, said a 60-year period of political uncertainty "has been decisively eliminated" by the referendum.

George Mavros, leader of the nation's moderate left opposition, said, "There are no victors or vanquished. The people as a whole have won."

Left-wing militant Andreas Papandreou called the referendum Greece's "first major step in the struggle for national independence and popular sovereignty."

Life's sweeter in Canada and Mexico

Blame governments for sugar prices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department conducted a survey and found that while Americans were paying 48 cents a pound for sugar last month, Canadians paid 12 cents and Mexicans paid 8.4 cents.

Officials said the varying prices were part of a bizarre pattern produced by differing government policies around the world.

They said that while world raw sugar prices zoomed to new heights during the past year because supplies were tight, many exporting nations held their home-market retail prices down by using price controls.

The survey by the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service of prices as of Nov. 1 in 30 countries showed retail prices ranging from 7.4 cents a pound in Belize to $4 cents a pound in Zaire.

The reported U.S. price of 48 cents a pound in East Coast areas was exceeded in only two of the 30 countries checked in the survey — Zaire, and the Soviet Union where consumers were paying 56 cents a pound.

Others: South Africa, 9.1 cents a pound; Brazil, 9.8 cents; Philippines, 10 cents; Lebanon, 14 cents; Australia, 15 cents; Iran, 16.4 cents; Indonesia, 18.6 cents; France, 21.3 cents; United Kingdom, 22.2 cents; Poland, 23.9 cents; Italy, 26 cents; Japan, 42 cents.

FTC orders Listerine to 'gargle'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Federal Trade Commission judge ruled today that Listerine mouthwash does not prevent or cure colds or sore throats as the company has claimed for years.

The gargle may indeed "kill millions of germs on contact," administrative law Judge Alvin L. Berman said, but it also leaves millions more alive. He said further that none of that has anything to do with cold fighting in the first place.

Warner-Lambert issued a statement saying it "completely disagrees" with the finding and will fight it as far as possible.

"The judge has apparently chosen to ignore the most significant evidence, including well controlled scientific studies which attest to the effectiveness of Listerine in the treatment of colds and their symptoms, and the testimony of scientific experts from leading medical institutions," it said.

In an order still subject to review by the full commission, and to appeal in the courts later if upheld, Berman directed Warner-Lambert Co., the makers of Listerine, to run corrective advertising for two years. In all future advertisements for Listerine for that period the company would have to confess:

"Contrary to prior advertising of Listerine, Listerine will not prevent or cure colds or sore throats, and Listerine will not be beneficial in the treatment of cold symptoms or sore throats."

Supreme Court will decide

Can silence be challenged during trial?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court today agreed to decide if prosecutors can question defendants during their trials about why they remained silent when first questioned by police.

Federal appeals courts have handed down conflicting rulings on whether such cross-examinations violate the defendant's right to remain silent by implying he was trying to cover up an alleged crime.

Oral arguments will be heard later this term and a written opinion will follow.

When a person is arrested, he is advised of his right to a lawyer and his rights to remain silent under questioning.

In two cases appealed to the Supreme Court, defendants refused to answer police questions during their initial interrogation. By the time they went to trial, the defendants had alibis. Prosecutors, in an effort to cast a shadow on the alibis in the mind of jurors, questioned the defendants about why they failed to mention the alibis to police.

The Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia ordered a new trial for William G. Hale, who was convicted of robbery. Chief Judge David Bazelon referred to the landmark 1966 Supreme Court ruling in Miranda v. Arizona, which gave defendants the right to remain silent. He said prosecutors could not try to use the silence against defendants at trial. The government appealed.

In other actions today, the Court:

— Let stand a lower court order awarding back pay to a large group of workers after a small group of them proved they were discriminated against because of race.

— Dismissed appeals of a decision that states cannot withhold child welfare payments when the father is unemployed because of a strike or for misconduct.

— Agreed to examine a New York state regulation reducing rent allowances to welfare families if the household includes an adult not responsible for the children.

— Let stand a decision by the Ohio Supreme Court upholding Cincinnati's ordinance against noisy, boisterous, rude or insulting language.

Federal drug agents say

Too much fooling around at Playboy mansions

CHICAGO (UPI) — The posh world of Playboy Enterprises and Playboy prince Hugh Hefner has come under scrutiny by federal drug investigators in a probe of suspected illicit drug activities, authorities say.

A federal grand jury is looking into allegations that cocaine, barbiturates and marijuana were used by employees and guests at Hefner's Playboy mansions in Chicago and Beverly Hills, Calif.

At least 10 present and former Playboy employees, including Playboy bunnies and Hefner aides, have been subpoenaed to testify before the grand jury, investigators said.

Published reports noted that two of those subpoenaed already have appeared before the panel and that eight more were to appear before the grand jury Tuesday.

While Hefner was not among those subpoenaed, investigators say he is prime target of the probe.

The Chicago Tribune Sunday quoted a key source close to the investigation as saying: "Investigators are shooting at him (Hefner) and he's in a helluva lot of trouble. There's no doubt about it."

It is alleged that Hefner knew of the illicit goings on at his luxurious Playboy pads and sought to cover up the activities.

CHICAGO (UPI) — American evangelist Billy Graham Sunday met exiled Soviet author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn to discuss world religious trends. Graham said he was amazed by the Russian's grasp of history and theology.

Graham said "Solzhenitsyn has the kind of intellect and moral courage that the world so desperately needs today. His grasp of both history and theology is amazing."

Graham is visiting several European countries to meet religious leaders.

Solzhenitsyn is in Stockholm to receive the Nobel literature prize he was awarded four years ago.

The address was broadcast over Havana Radio and monitored here.

MIAMI (UPI) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro says women's liberation is a means of achieving economic development.

In an address to members of Cuba's construction industry, Castro singled out the role of Cuban women in the industry, saying, "It has been shown that in many activities ... women perform perfectly well and, in some cases, are more careful and more productive than men."

DuPont missing

CHADDS FORD, Pa. (UPI) — The wife of William Foster Du Pont, 35, an heir to the Du Pont fortune, confirmed Sunday that her husband has been missing.

"I have not heard from him," Mrs. DuPont said. "I have reported him missing and I have nothing further to say."

The missing persons report was filed by Mrs. DuPont with state police in Delaware on Dec. 2, but her husband has reportedly been missing for more than three weeks. The Du Ponts also maintain a home in Greenville, Del.

She said she has tried to keep any publicity at a minimum because of her four children. "I don't want them embarrassed," she said.

Hussein on war

ROME (UPI) — King Hussein of Jordan said in an interview with an Italian magazine he believes a new Middle East War is inevitable and this time it may be fought with atomic weapons.

"I don't even ask if the disaster can be avoided. I only ask how long it can be postponed," Hussein said in the interview published in the current issue of the weekly L'Europeo magazine.

Auto sales expected to slump more in December

DETROIT (UPI) — Detroit's automakers say they expect already bad sales to slump even further in December, hardly denting a near record inventory of unsold cars that could last until late February.

Because of the 86-day supply of cars jamming lots, 13 assembly plants will be closed and 163,000 auto workers idled this week. By Christmas, more than 215,000 auto workers will feel the effects of the sagging sales.

By the end of January, 112,000 U.S. and Canadian auto workers will still be on indefinite layoffs, approaching the 115,000 idled during the depths of last winter's energy crisis.

Domestic auto sales this month are expected to total about 425,000 cars, off about 26 per cent from last year and the worst nonstrike December since 1959. It also will be the lowest sales for any month since the slump began in mid-September of last year, even before the start of the Arab oil embargo.

"December will come out like November — slow," one industry analyst said. "It could be the bottom of a trough that will take some time to come out of."

Another analyst, sizing up December prospects, commented: "You can't compete with Santa Claus for sales in December."

The sagging December sales will put 1974 in the book at about 8.5 million cars, including 1.4 million imports.

That's almost 23 per cent off the record 11.44 million of 1973 and the worst for the industry since 1970.

Sales in the past two months have been at levels not seen since the late 1950s, perhaps the largest in history.

"Anything over 70 days is when the brakes start going on production," one analyst said. "Sixty days is considered workable and 50 is normal."

The days' supply is determined by dividing the inventory of unsold cars at the end of a month by the daily sales rate during that month.

If sales drop during the month, the days' supply would keep climbing until automakers cut their production like they have in the past month.

There were more than 1.7 million unsold cars jamming auto company and dealer storage lots at the beginning of December — enough to last 86 days at the current sales rate even if all plants were closed.

It was the greatest supply in terms of days and demand since 1965 and analysts said perhaps the largest in history.

Proxmire says Federal Reserve caused slump

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William Proxmire, ranking Democrat on the Senate Banking Committee, today blamed the Federal Reserve Board's "super-tight money policies" for a deepening recession.

"By refusing to provide the credit our system needs the Federal Reserve Board is restraining job-producing activity in the private sector and making major public employment ... a greater and greater political probability," Proxmire said.

The Wisconsin Democrat, whose committee has jurisdiction over the board, said the solution to the problem of higher prices and fewer jobs is "to give the private sector its head."

"Here the discipline of competition, the necessity of holding down costs and especially the fact that the private sector, unlike the military and space programs for example, produces economic goods means that more activity will produce both jobs and the abundance of goods that can reduce the rate of inflation."

He said the board's money policies are responsible for joblessness, a bigger federal budget, and a larger spending deficit.

"How else can Congress and the President react except with increased spending when six million of our fellow citizens want to work and can't find it?" Proxmire said.

It is down-right depressing when you realize that so much of the pain and suffering could be avoided by precautionary checkups or effective treatment at the first signs of the problem.

Birch Society opens commercial book sales

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The John Birch Society, encouraged by sale of a book on Sen. Edward Kennedy, is launching a campaign to sell its books through regular commercial and college book stores.

Until now, the society has sold its works only in its own chain of 400 American Opinion stores. The Birch Society's publishing house, Western Islands, has put out more than 100 titles.

The scene changed with the publication of "Teddy Bare," about Kennedy, liberal Democratic senator from Massachusetts and long time target of the conservative society. After selling about 200,000 copies through its own outlets, Western Islands stepped up promotion and "received about 8,000 commercial orders after placing a full page advertisement in Publisher's Weekly and demand spiraled from there." Western Islands sales manager Wallis Wood said recently.

Sales have now reached 450,000 nationwide and "Teddy Bare" has for some months been the third-best selling paperback book in the country kept by the New York Times, Wood said.

The book on Kennedy was written by Michael Sturdza, a former Romanian foreign minister, under the nom de plume Zad Rust, working from materials available to him in Europe. The renewal of interest in the Chappaquidick drowning and Kennedy's statement promising not to run for president in 1976 helped create demand for the book.

Birch Society leaders are known to feel that most of their published works are read now only by persons who already share the society's conservative beliefs and the material should reach a wider audience.

They are also reportedly worried over the defeat of political candidates branded as Birchers by liberal opponents, and hope that the spread of the society's arguments through book sales will remove the stigma of such an identification.

Wood complained that no matter how well Birch Society books sell, they cannot "crack through the paper curtain of censorship" that keeps them from being reviewed in major newspapers, such as the New York Times. That hurts sales, he said.

Cons mess up escape

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — For Allen Lucket and Michael Malone, it was out of the frying pan and into the ...

Lucket, 19, and Malone, 18, convicted thieves awaiting sentencing, were cleaning a sundeck on the 15th floor of the county courthouse and jail when they discovered what seemed to be a route to freedom.

They kicked open a door and began descending the side of the building with the help of a coil of heavy-duty electrical cord.

The cord ran out on a ledge on the 10th floor. Deputies said the ledge is home roost to jailbirds of a different sort — pigeons — and the decades-old accumulation of droppings is more than a foot deep.

Lucket and Malone were recaptured after they spent several messy hours in a futile hunt for a way out.

They were given showers and clean uniforms before being booked on attempted escape charges.

World of animals

Medicine for people is not for animals

By Dr. Frank Miller

DEAR DR. MILLER: The first of what promises to be a long string of holiday houseguests arrived last night. My Siamese cat, used to a quieter existence, howled his head off so long and loud I couldn't stand it one minute longer.

It also rather unnerved my houseguests. One of them had brought along some tranquilizers. When she took one for herself, she offered one to me for my cat. I gave him part of it, but instead of calming him the pill appeared to have just the opposite effect. He began drooling, the pupils of his eyes got huge, and he started racing around the room at top speed, bouncing off the walls as he went. I was really afraid he would die from a heart attack or something, but after a few hours he stopped. From sheer exhaustion, I'm sure. He slept all night and most of this morning, but he's gradually coming back to his old noisy self. Do cats really have this happen very often? — P. W.

Dear P. W.: Undesirable drug reactions frequently happen to felines, more so than to canines. Cats can be, and have been, put to sleep by the wrong tablet permanently. To minimize this possibility, use only those drugs prescribed by your cat's doctor, and use them only in the prescribed manner.

DEAR DR. MILLER: My baby Chihuahua was dropped on its head. We didn't think anything about it at the time because it always acted kind of dazed, anyway. We thought this was because it was so young. Later, it showed up with water on the brain. We were told it was probably inherited. Is this always what happens, or could it have been because it was dropped on its head? — G. G.

Dear G. G.: Hydrocephalus (water on the brain) can be either congenital or acquired. Certainly trauma, such as can be induced by a blow on the head, can cause it. It does, however, commonly occur in Chihuahuas, Pekinese and other (brachycephalic) breeds with similar skull structure.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Our cat's ears are always dirty and our dog's hardly ever are. Why should this be when the dogs the one who never takes a bath; in fact he's kind of a slob. Primrose (she's the cat) is neat as a pin about most things. Wouldn't you think she'd do a better job on her ears? — N.E.

Dear N. E.: Primrose probably tries. However, when it comes to ear cleaning, cats can't cope. The cause of dirty ears is usually (ear) mites. These pesky little critters keep the ear irritated (at the very least). Part of the resulting residue is excess wax produced by the ears in an attempt to protect themselves.

Yule tips for energy conscious

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — 'Tis the season to be stingy with energy-consuming gifts, according to a University of California physicist.

Lee Schipper says the perfect gifts are usually high quality items that involve as little non-renewable energy as possible to manufacture and use.

Gifts to be considered by the energy-conscious buyer might be a season ticket to the local rapid transit system, or knit wool sweaters which allows the wearer to get along with less artificial heating.

"We can all influence energy use by carefully selecting products, services and materials which reflect efficient and productive energy use," says Schipper, a specialist with the Energy and Resources Program on the UC Berkeley campus.

This means avoiding such fuel squanderers as frost-free refrigerators, which use 50 per cent more energy than simpler models, and automobiles, Schipper said.

In the long run, the physicist said, high quality items, though expensive, are recommended because they work more efficiently and last longer. He said quality stereos and television sets were examples of products providing hours of pleasure while consuming little energy in use.

Schipper believes consumers should also look for gifts that require large amounts of human labor, such as handcrafted items or, more indirectly, symphony and opera tickets.

He says buyers should avoid metal and plastic where wood offers a good alternative and—Christmas season gaiety aside—boycott decorative uses of all materials, especially paper, plastic and metals.

Paper, he said, is especially "energy-costly," and people should be stingy and refrain from excessive wrapping or elaborate packaging of presents.

"Holiday gift buying gives us an opportunity to approach the traditions in an energy saving way," says Schipper.

It takes more energy, he explained, to make a dollar's worth of an appliance than a pair of shoes. About the same amount of energy is consumed to make a $200 suit as it does to make an $80 bicycle, he added.

"Even without gasoline lines we still face a gigantic energy crisis both in energy supply and in energy use," said Schipper.

"When we are shopping, we should remember that roughly twice as much energy is consumed to provide the products and services we enjoy than we consume directly, and the cost of this indirect energy use is included in what we pay for goods and services."

Another Jaycee official who did not want to be identified said the move by the local chapters could lead to revocation of the district charter. But he added that the size of the 1,400 member district might discourage such action.

Jaycees may defy charter, okay women

MIAMI (UPI) — Seven of the nine Jaycee chapters in Florida's largest district may defy their national charter soon and allow women to become full members of the traditionally all-male organization.

Under the national charter, membership in the organization is limited to males between 18 and 35 years old. Many chapters accept women as "associate members" who hold all privileges except voting and holding office.

But Will Stuart, vice president of the Greater Miami Chapter, said that a move is underway among most of the chapters in District 20 to grant full membership rights to women.

Stuart called the concept of retaining the male exclusiveness of the organization "ridiculous" and said it is a concept favored by "a bunch of conservative old fuddyduddies who are afraid of change."

Another Jaycee official who did not want to be identified said the move by the local chapters could lead to revocation of the district charter. But he added that the size of the 1,400 member district might discourage such action.

Cutting yule trees good for forest

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Don't feel guilty about hurting the forest by cutting down a Christmas tree this year.

The Western Timber Association said most Christmas trees are grown on plantations just for that purpose and the cutting of wild trees can help the forest to grow better.

"In order to improve the overall health and growth of the forest, the young trees must be weeded just like a garden," the association said.

"When Christmas trees are cut, either in the wild or on plantations, they are usually cut close the bottom whorl of green branches, which, in most cases, will turn toward and grow into a new tree."

The group notes that the federal government is among the nation's fresh Christmas tree merchants. "Several thousand trees were sold from California national forests this year with revenue going to the federal treasury and a share to the counties," the association said.

The association lists the four most popular types of Christmas trees as:

"Pines, distinguished by their relatively long needles found in bundles of two, three or five.

"Douglas fir, the most popular Christmas tree with short, soft, fragrant needles that grow out all around the twigs, and cigar shaped buds.

"True firs, with needles between one and two inches long, appearing to grow from the sides of the twigs, and are stiff and rounded on the ends.

"Spruces, with short, stiff, sharp needles.

The association says spruces are the "least desirable tree because the needles tend to fall off easily when the tree dries out."

YMCA sponsoring bike-a-thon to help programs

Numerous prizes will be available to persons competing in Sunday's 22-mile bike-a-thon sponsored by Pomona Valley YMCA.

The bike-a-thon will cover the north side of the valley, from Claremont to Covina, along Arrow Highway, Bonita Avenue and Covina Boulevard between Indian Hill Boulevard and Barranca Avenue.

The prize most persons will be working for, according to Larry Woods, a general director of the YMCA, is a 10-speed bicycle given for completion of the 22-mile course, and for obtaining $10 or more per mile in sponsorships.

In addition, In and Out Burgers, a co-sponsor of the event, is donating 500 hamburgers and french fries to the bike-a-thon, Woods said.

Pomona Schwinn Cyclery is donating a Peugeot 10-speed bike as the grand prize, and Seven-Up Bottling Co. of El Monte is offering two wrist watches, a popcorn popper, a cooler and 12 dozen 7-up glasses, plus a drink to everyone who rides.

The Sears Store in Pomona is donating a tape player for a prize.

Further information on the bike-a-thon is available by calling 623-6433.

Board will hear report on trip from educator

Howard Wigell, assistant superintendent for instructional services, will report to the Bonita school board Tuesday regarding his observations from his recent trip to Australia. He will discuss early childhood education, career education and graduation requirements in Australia.

Results of the state testing program will be presented at the 7:30 p.m. meeting.

The board will be asked to approve the authorization of an appraisal of the old San Dimas Elementary School site as part of the condemnation action taken by the city of San Dimas to purchase the site for a park.

The board will hear progress reports on building projects currently underway in the district.

Six children die as fire consumes home

BEACON, N.Y. (UPI) — Six children, ranging in age from 5 months to 8 years, were killed Saturday when fire destroyed a two-story house in this Hudson Valley city, authorities said.

Christmas shopping is in full swing, but shoppers this year seem to be more careful of their purchases and more cost-conscious than in previous years.

Even children seem aware of prices.

"This is a lot more than I need. It costs $19.95 and it's only aluminum," a boy of about 10 years told his mother, referring to a tennis racket in a valley department store.

"It's too much now, but I'm going to get it next year," a well-dressed young lad of perhaps 7 years announced confidently to his sister, looking in a store window on the Pomona Mall.

"How about getting something they need for their house? If we pay that much we should get something they can use," a teen-age girl said to an elderly woman on an escalator in the Montclair Plaza.

Store managers are generally optimistic about Christmas sales. They say the season started slowly because of the lateness of Thanksgiving (last year, Thanksgiving fell on the 22nd, compared to the 28th this year). But they say that sales are better than anticipated, given the state of the economy, and while shoppers are looking longer and harder before they buy, they are buying.

At Buffum's, Richard Rundles, assistant store manager said: "we've been experiencing gains over last year. The economic situation hasn't been hurting us. People are looking at quality and price and doing more shopping around, but they are buying."

"We were quite concerned, but now we're happy. We're beating last year's sales," he said.

"There's no question that people are buying. But this year they're buying practical items more than luxury items," Richard Gorow, store manager at Montclair's Montgomery Ward store, said.

Stores in the Montclair Plaza are doing well, according to Barbara DeVoss, plaza manager. "It's a little early to tell, the shopping season is six days short this year so it's difficult to compare, but merchants are doing about the same as last year and we're very optimistic," she said.

She noted that there seems to be more credit buying this year and that the department stores have generally loosened up on credit. She mentioned one chain which, instead of building 11 new stores nationally as planned was expanding its charge customers in the existing stores.

There may also be, Mrs. DeVoss said, a little bit of the "eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow you may die" philosophy among some shoppers this year. "Some seem to feel that if you've got it, spend it," she said.

"We should be crowded this time of year and we are," Jay Ambrose, Sears store manager said. But he mentioned that with the late season, it's hard to predict trends. "We feel it will be a good season, it's coming later because of the calendar, that's all," he said.

At Toy World in the Montclair Plaza, assistant manager Mary Lou Hill said:

"People are being more cautious and more practical than usual. The fad items that are priced too high are being bypassed for the basic things."

She also mentioned that people are looking longer this year before buying than they have in previous years.

At Whidgindilly, a toy store in Griswold's Old School House in Claremont that specializes in imported toys and expensive hand-crafted toys, Darci Johnson said that the big sellers this year are the nostalgia items.

People are buying old-time trinkets and miniatures this year," she reported. A big seller at the store is well-made, old-fashioned doll house furniture, not an inexpensive item.

Other stores have noted that people are buying more expensive jewelry and less appliances than usual. There are a number of theories for the reason, but the general consensus seems to be that expensive jewelry boosts morale, rather than being considered an investment. Diamonds are an exception, as they are considered by some to be an investment.

An unusual gift this year, for the person who has everything or nothing, is gaining in sales over former years. That is a gift certificate at the supermarket. A number of major grocery chains, including Safeway and Alpha Beta, are selling gift certificates redeemable at any branch of the chains.

Market managers locally report that they are selling an unusual amount of these certificates this year. And that further, they are selling them earlier than usual.

An item that is normally bought the last two weeks before Christmas, the sales have had an added boost this year with an increased number of businesses and clubs giving the certificates as presents to employees and as promotion gifts. They are available in dollar amounts from $2.50 to $200.

If a gift certificate for a five-pound sack of sugar for Aunt Minnie this Christmas won't suffice, it is possible to give a gift certificate for classes. At Claremont Parks and Recreation Department, gift certificates are available for classes such as a 10-week session of banjo instruction for Uncle Fred or a crewel embroidery class for Aunt Ethel—or a weekend at snow camp for cousin George.

LOOK FIRST, THEN BUY

Close scrutiny of gift items is the rule for shoppers this year as demonstrated by this intense young shopper.

Personnel director of schools retiringMARY GARRETT

A woman who accepted a secretarial position as a temporary job in the Claremont Unified School District 12 years ago will retire Dec. 31 as head of the district's personnel office.

Fellow workers in the district will honor Mary Garrett at a reception at Griswold's Pavilion Tuesday from 4 to 8 p.m.

Mrs. Garrett is retiring because of health reasons. She says she is looking forward to living in her new townhouse at San Clemente.

Her position of district personnel assistant for Claremont schools demands many hours of her time for detailed, exacting work, night meetings, conferences, and even Saturday work.

It is tremendously more complicated than the position she took as secretary at El Roble Intermediate School in January 1962.

Mrs. Garrett had been attending classes at Cal State Los Angeles and working towards a degree in English when she decided to take the job for six months before returning to her work at Glendora School District.

She stayed on and worked at Claremont High during the summer session.

Mrs. Garrett later went to work for Dr. Ed Muehlhausen, assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum and personnel.

When he left in 1964 to become superintendent of schools at Millbrae, the then Claremont superintendent, Donald Brinegar, told Mrs. Garrett to continue the job she was doing in personnel.

She has been doing the job ever since, but the demands of the office have resulted in the addition of Mrs. Gerry Lober as administrative secretary; Mrs. Dottie Dunn as credential technician; and Mrs. Patty Winningham, personnel clerk.

Mrs. Garrett is responsible for the annual contracts for 232 classified employees, 238 certified employees, and 125 substitutes and staff members.

She is involved in negotiations and management training, and writes new policies mandated by the state for the district.

She feels that the labor market has changed drastically since she came to the district.

Whereas the district scheduled re-cruiting trips throughout the Southwest to find qualified persons in 1962, now the district can select the most qualified person for a specific position.

"There is a surplus of teacher applicants," Mrs. Garrett commented. "Especially at the elementary level and in social sciences and humanities."

She thinks that the colleges will be more selective now in accepting teacher candidates.

Mrs. Garrett believes that a really good applicant still can get a job even if he or she has to start out as a substitute teacher.

Superior Judge F. Leslie Manker declared the policy violates the equal rights amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

Watergate juryDecides to forget Christmas holiday season for justice

By JANE DENISON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Watergate jury's decision to put justice ahead of jingle bells has stunned some defense lawyers and encouraged the prosecution, all of whom expected the jurors to jump at a chance to get home for Christmas.

Members on the cover-up trial jury voted unanimously against trying to finish the case before the holidays if it would mean rushing to a conclusion.

Their verdict was delivered Friday to Judge John J. Sirica in a letter written in a neat feminine hand.

Lawyers on both sides had expected jury members, who have been sequestered for the duration of trial, to snap up Sirica's offer to work nights and Saturdays in order to get home in time for Christmas.

"It scares the hell out of me," said one defense attorney, only half-kidding as the letter dimmed his hopes for a hung jury. "Anything unanimous scares the hell out of me."

Government attorneys, meanwhile, called the panel "a thinking man's jury" and said they viewed the decision a good sign for the prosecution.

Only Sirica, unable to resist a grin, seemed not to be surprised.

" Didn't I tell you never to underestimate the intelligence of a jury?" he asked.

Edward Kennedy, Jr., the son of the Massachusetts senator, was stricken with the disease last year and had the leg amputated. He now is undergoing chemical therapy to combat any cancer cells that may have spread beyond the leg.

Before drugs were used in conjunction with amputation, the five-year survival rate for that form of cancer was only 17 per cent. The recent use of drugs following amputation will increase the survival rate to 75 per cent.

The new technique relies heavily on large doses of four drugs to first shrink the bone tumor and then to guard against any remaining cancer cells following bone removal.

" Didn't I tell you never to underestimate the intelligence of a jury?" he asked.

Mexico's standoff:
Progress or people

If any country qualifies as a "third-and-a-half world" nation—a nation with one foot firmly planted in a bright future while the other is still held back by the age-old problems of poverty and social inequity—it would seem to be America's good southern neighbor, Mexico.

Since the travail of its revolutionary period in the first two decades of this century, Mexico has made steady and impressive strides toward economic and industrial development and greater equality in distribution of income in an environment on stable democracy.

A steadily falling death rate coupled with an (until recently) officially encouraged high birth rate has now, however, brought Mexico to the point where it hovers between two possibilities: On the one hand, continued development; on the other, the situation that plagues most Third World nations—runaway population growth that eats up all economic gains.

Mexico's population tripled between 1930 and 1970, from 16 million to 48 million. The estimate for 1974 is 56 million. Mexico has both the largest Spanish-speaking population in the world and one of the world's highest demographic growth rates—3.4 per cent in 1973. This compares with 2.3 to 2.8 per cent in Africa, Asia and the rest of Latin America and barely 1 per cent in Europe, the United States, Canada and the Soviet Union.

Especially marked has been the growth of the Mexican population under 15 years of age, from two-fifths of the total in 1940 to 46 per cent at present.

Under a new General Population Law enacted early this year, Mexico set up a top-level National Population Council charged with tying the country's economic and social development programs to population policy in an over-all strategy.

According to Mario Moya Palencia, Mexican minister of the interior and chairman of the council, "family planning remains within the inviolable area of free will, while the state's function is to promote general education for responsible, rational and informed exercise of the supreme prerogative of procreation."

Only time—a very short time—will tell for Mexico, as it will for the rest of the developing world whether this "supreme prerogative of procreation" will be voluntarily brought into balance with the supreme realities of the last third of the 20th century.

Charity with purpose

An estimated 250,000 Americans went hungry on Thursday of the week preceding Thanksgiving.

According to the sponsors of a "Fast for World Harvest," at least that many people around the country participated in the idea of fasting one day and sending the money they would have spent on the food to be distributed to relief projects around the world.

The willingness of ordinary Americans to make sacrifices to help alleviate the world food shortage illustrated by this response is something that will not be lost on the promoters of schemes less worthy than the one-day fast.

Americans are famously generous givers, especially at this time of year they are besieged from all sides by pleas for donations from a host of organizations, most of them quite on the level, others less so.

But even many of the legitimate charities have a serious problem of "fiscal friction." Too often, too much of the funds they collect goes for promotional and administrative costs and too little eventually trickles down to those they purport to serve.

If Americans have an obligation to help those less fortunate than themselves, at home or abroad, they also have an obligation to make sure that help goes where they want it to go.

They should hesitate before responding to that heart-touching plea that comes in the mail long enough to check on the authenticity and the past record of the requesting organization, either through their newspaper, chamber of commerce or local charitable agencies.

If the Arab terrorist business has you confused, welcome to the club.

The United Nations' huzzahs for Yassir Arafat, leader of the terrorist Palestine Liberation Organization, was disgraceful in the eyes of millions of peace-loving Americans, and badly tarnishing to the UN Charter with its promise of a forum for peace-loving nations.

But Arafat is now angry at other terrorists; the dissident Palestinian guerrillas who hijacked that plane and went the usual route of demands for release of some of their members, on threat of death for the passengers. The affair further threatens the Arab block with the PLO and Egypt saying nasty things about Iraq and Libya because they have supported the splinter groups Arafat is mad at.

There is fear, indeed, that the whole mess will blow up into violence . . . what else? And all the Middle East needs is a spark, a flame like that.

Careless driving, or was it callous?

It is Thanksgiving morning, and I have just removed the still-warm body of somebody's pet cat from the middle of the street. The fog has burned away, leaving a bright morning; there is little traffic; no object limits visibility; and the speed limit on this residential street is 25 miles per hour.

It would seem that some person's eagerness to get on with his holiday activities made him careless—or callous. Perhaps it is unreasonable to ask that one ease off on the gas pedal for a few seconds in order to avoid hitting an animal in the road. Perhaps, in our all-important busyness, it is "corny" to ask that one show consideration for the non-human life that has the misfortune to cross our path.

If so, perhaps one might spare a thought for the people—adults as well as children—whose holiday joy will be cut short by the loss of a cherished pet. (I think of the family to whom this morning's victim belonged.) Some accidents are truly inevitable. But many happen only because we refuse to exercise the caution and consideration necessary to avoid them. — C. R. Johnson, Claremont.

Drinking water scare

I would like to comment in regard to stories you have recently printed in the serious contamination of Mississippi River water supplying New Orleans.

The stories have been well written but they failed to mention two very positive factors which may well accrue to the benefit of mankind. Briefly stated, they are as follows:

(1) Were surface sources of drinking water to prove a major cause of human cancer, we could effectively reduce the human death rate from cancer by converting to safer underground water supplies. While ground water currently supplies 50 per cent of our drinking water needs, its development could be greatly expanded. U.S. Geological Survey scientists estimate that ground water reserved in the United States will last over 700 years at present rates of consumption.

(2) The recent drinking water scare resulted in an overwhelming victory for the Safe Drinking Water Act in the House of Representatives on November 20, where the bill has languished for nearly four years due to opposition by oil interests, states' rights, and apathetic congressmen.

With eventual passage of this legislation by both the House and Senate and support of its ground water protection features by the public from all levels of government, there is hope of protecting our generally pure ground water supplies from invasion by industrial and municipal pollutants which appear almost universally in our surface waters. — Jay H. Lehr, executive director, National Water Well Assn., Columbus, Ohio.

Bizzare kidnaping of Korean leader

SEOUL — South Korea's President Chung Hee Park has been bedeviled by a bizarre kidnaping case, which almost brought a break in diplomatic relations with Japan and badly damaged his international standing.

On Aug. 8, 1973, his last presidential opponent, Kim Dae Jung, was abducted in broad daylight from Tokyo's Grand Palace Hotel. He turned up a few days later in Seoul under house arrest.

I have carefully delved into the incident, which has been shrouded in mystery.

Shortly before the kidnaping, Kim Dae Jung called on me in Washington to complain about President Park. I found Kim again this week in a snug home in the maze of byways that near Osaka.

He looked much the same, an unlikely figure of international intrigue, with a sad, cherubic face. On the wall behind the stove was a picture of himself standing in triumph for a huge presidential rally. He lost the 1971 election to President Park by 900,000 votes.

Speaking with quiet resolve, Kim told me how six burly Koreans had grabbed him in the hotel corridor, thrust him into a room and held an ether-soaked cloth over his nose.

The drug wore off as he was hustled down the elevator. Two Japanese boarded the elevator on the seventh floor. Kim cried out: "Help me! They are going to kill me!"

The two Japanese passengers hastily departed the elevator on the third floor and the kidnapers angrily beat Kim as they continued the ride down to the garage. They pushed him into a car, jammed his head down on the seat and held hands over his eyes and mouth.

They tried several times to anesthetize him, but the ether always wore off quickly. He estimated that the drive last five hours.

Kim was taken first to an apartment where he was bound and gagged, then to the waterfront where he was dumped into a small launch. To the best of his belief, this occurred somewhere near Osaka.

His arms were freed and he prayerfully made the sign of the cross, thinking his abductors intended to throw him into the sea. Instead they beat him badly and hauled him aboard a larger ship.

Far out to sea, he was lashed to a wooden board and weighted down with heavy stones. He knew for certain he was about to be cast overboard to the bottom of the sea.

"I prayed," Kim told me emotionally. "I asked Jesus Christ to save me. As I prayed, I heard strong noises like bumping. A crew member cried out, 'Airplane!' Then it was reported an American helicopter had appeared."

Kim was dragged out of sight, where he remained tied to the two rocks. Several hours later, a crew member whispered in his ear: "Don't worry. You will be saved."

Not long afterward, his bonds were loosened and he was given a drink. On Aug. 11, he arrived at some port. He was judged from the heavy truck noises that it was an industrial port.

Thereafter, he received kind treatment. A doctor attended him twice as he was moved overland to a small farmhouse, then to a Western-style apartment. He knew he was back in Korea.

Eventually, his abductors left him on a side street, tapes over his eyes, with instructions not to remove the blindfold until they had time to leave the scene. As they drove off, he pulled off the tapes and found himself in front of the church in his home neighborhood.

Kim raised a howl about the kidnaping and was immediately placed under house arrest. He was investigated for several weeks for alleged treasonous activity abroad. The charges were abandoned on Oct. 8, 1973, and he was released from house arrest.

The courts asked that he be detained in the country, however, until earlier charges of election irregularities are resolved. Kim admitted that he was now free to attend church, to participate in political activity and to go where he wished within the country.

But he complained that he was under constant surveillance by the Korean Central Intelligence Agency. He also charged that KCIA agents intimidated Korean politicians and newsmen who tried to call on him.

Kim believes his abductors were also KCIA agents although they identified themselves as members of a patriotic youth party. The Americans and Japanese press have suggested strongly that President Park himself ordered the abduction of his rival.

A summer upturn in economy

Most of 1974 is in and added up; what are the prospects for 1975? The inexact science of economics is only semireliable. There is no consensus among economists, who cannot even agree on a definition of recession.

If they could, they would have to allow for the fact that there is right now a recession in Detroit and a business boom in Wichita.

For the sake of this year-end audit and a prognosis of 1975 business prospects, we will rely on men most likely to see the future whence it comes: the economic historians.

There have been five recessions since World War II. The longest and deepest of them, 1953-54, lasted 13 months. The last recession, 1969-70, lasted 12 months.

Our nation's worst unemployment during any of these postwar recessions was in 1948-49, when it went to 7.9 per cent.

During 1953-54, our nation's gross national product—our total production of everything, goods and services—declined 3.9 per cent. During 1969-70, the GNP backslid only 1.5 per cent.

If these fractions are tedious, they are our best basic for computing the depth and duration of the present economic "consolidation."

I prefer that word because no practical person can expect Detroit to continue making 11, 12, 13 million new cars every year without eventually oversupplying the demand.

Henry Ford proclaims a "depression," with car sales trailing a year ago by 34 per cent. He demands we do something about it. We are doing precisely what needs to be done about it. Detroit is making fewer cars—until demand catches up with all those unsold cars-on-hand.

Similarly, in the housing business we were just plain "overbuilt." There had to come a topping out, a time for catching our breath, a period of "consolidation."

Ideally and politically, one might hope that each segment of our economy could continue to expand indefinitely, but realistically we know better.

Mortgage interest rates on new homes declined in October to 9.17 per cent. That is the first decline in 17 months, suggesting the recession in home building has touched bottom.

The consensus of bankers who conferred this month in Chicago was that the prime rate will go down to 8 per cent and the construction of new houses upturn by mid-1975—and no other industry, not even automobiles, has such widespread chain-reaction effect on related industries. Prosperity in the home-building business has and can keep our entire economy humming.

So, by the charts, unemployment in the United States—now 6 per cent—could go to 7 per cent by spring. Then, by the summer of '75, our economy should upturn.

And if you want to bet on it, the stock market generally anticipates future trends by about six months.

Just in jest

What's a nasty old man to do these days? — Because of cancer warnings, he quit smoking. And now it looks as though he will have to give up another vice. A recent study indicates there is also a correlation between cancer and beer drinking. — A most unfortunate state of affairs to say the least, for he's much too old to be capable of enjoying the rest of the seven deadly sins.

You are an Old Timer if you can remember back to when girls played basketball in bloomers; or even more recently to when Gussie Moran's lace pantie tennis outfit had the moralists shaking their heads in outraged consternation. And if you can remember way, way back to when the amorous antics of Amaryllis Ardreye, the heroine of "The Price of Things," by Elinor Glyn, were considered the last word in pornography, you get a 5 star Old Timer rating.

U.S. military's expensive bauble

WASHINGTON (NEA) — There is a National Guard unit in Daytona Beach which, for the past decade, has been using tax funds for the purpose of remaining proficient in obsolescence.

The unit, an air defense battery, is assigned as its responsibility a Korean War vintage anti-aircraft weapon with which it is virtually impossible to shoot down an aircraft. Many members of the unit believe the whole thing is unwise but continue to belong—and why not?—because they are paid up to several thousand dollars a year to keep the worthless artillery oiled.

The example is only one of a lengthy list of similar budget abuses and wasteful extravagance in the U.S. military reserve system, a system that has through the decades defied almost all attempts to modify or eliminate it. Americans spend more than $4 billion annually to preserve a 2.4-million-man reserve apparatus that in the opinion of many military and civilian observers is largely a joke.

Numerous investigations have reinforced this opinion. A recent Brookings Institute study concluded that most reserve units (including Reserve and Guard components) are woefully short of combat capacity; that at least 300,000 of the paid reservists (there are 925,000) could be eliminated without fear of disrupting national security and that, indeed, the state of the reserves is so low that entire new regular army units could be brought to proficiency in the time it would take to whip most reservists into battlefield condition.

The Daytona Beach battery is a ripe illustration of the last point. While it has been shining up outdated AA artillery for the past dozen years, several generations of new air defense guns have come and gone. Says one Florida Guard colonel: "If we could, we'd get the new weapons. As it is, if we came to an emergency, we'd have to completely re-train these men in the new weaponry. That would probably take months. Maybe it would take as much as a year. Even then, remember, they'd be no good against nuclear attack."

Thus it is that rather than add to the national security, much of America's reserve military capacity may be detracting from it. "The sheer statistics of the reserves may have lulled us into a sense of false security," says a Brookings staffer. "We say we have almost 2.5 million in the reserve force and that sounds gigantic. Actually, given the probable foe in an atomic age, it is nothing but mathematics. Our reserve bigness is mostly expensive fat."

The situation is nothing new. Critics have worried over reserve excesses and incapabilities since the end of World War II. But most tries at modernization, including Robert McNamara's sensible plan to merge the Guard and Reserve into one lean unit, have gone down the drain. One reason is the powerful anti-change lobby within the reserve itself; state governors command National Guard units, leading citizens local companies, and almost one of five in the current Congress is a proud member of the big fellowship club.

Even now, with Congress casting about for ways to cut spending, nary a word of wonder is raised about the need for a $4 billion-a-year reserve. The armed services committees recognize the reserve deficiencies, but think in terms of increasing outlays to achieve better performance. "Cut the budget?" says an astonished staffer. "Are you kidding?" About half the members of both armed services committees are re-elected.

Still, in times of inflation, cuts may not be avoided for long. One idea worth considering is a total restructuring of the reserves into cadre units. This, done now on a small scale, would eliminate everyone from selected (paid) status except highly skilled or administrative people who would continue to keep organizational apparatus active toward the day of possible mobilization.

If the day came, the cadre would simply call ready (standby) reservists up to flesh out the ranks. The citizen-soldiers, this way, would still be ready for emergency duty, but the nation would pay them unless it occurred.

Area resident sees seam-side of Hong Kong tailors

In 1973 I placed and paid $277 for an order of clothing at a local motel with a representative of Kaybee Enterprises of Hong Kong.

Two months later I received part of the order, items priced at a total of $72.

The rest of the order has never arrived although I have written to the firm and asked motel personnel to try to help me obtain the clothing.

I have dealt with Hong Kong tailors before and have always been completely satisfied. This is my first negative experience with them. — J. B., Pomona.

When we sent your complaint to the Mail Order Association of Hong Kong, Ltd., we learned that Kaybee was not a member of the association.

The complaint was turned over to the Commerce and Industry Department of Hong Kong. Unfortunately, the department could not locate Kaybee with the box number you had or any other way.

We now have advice from the Mail Order Association on safeguards to help others avoid problems like yours.

Most complaints referred to the association are of nondelivery of goods ordered and most are against companies which are not members of the association.

"Our members are carefully screened on application to insure they are legitimate, responsible and established companies in Hong Kong," writes Bob N. Harilela, chairman.

"The list of members is updated annually. They are therefore prepared to fulfill any commitment which they may make and would also be willing to make adjustments on any complaint with cause."

He urges consumers to deal only with salesmen who have identity cards issued to member companies.

Three weeks ago a salesman from La Salle Extension University came by.

After his convincing little speech my husband and I decided to enroll in the school.

Since we were broke at the time he said that if we gave him something of equal value he would put up the $30 fee until payday. We let him have our camera.

Later we were advised to cancel the contract immediately. Our cancellation notice was mailed the day after the $30 was sent in.

La Salle's policy is that if you cancel within six days your money will be refunded within 10 days.

Knowing this we gave the sales representative the money four days later and got our camera back.

Eight days after we canceled we received the first set of accounting books for the course we had originally signed up for.

We do not want these books. We want our money back. We have written to La Salle but have received no answer. — Mrs. J. H. San Dimas.

Our letter to La Salle Extension University in Chicago brought no answer either but you got your refund.

My problem concerns a football jersey. I sent away for it a month and a half ago. The order blank said to allow at least four weeks. I still don't have the jersey.

I would really appreciate it if you could help. I don't remember the address. If you can find the right address, I would appreciate anything you could do to help me get my jersey or money back. — J. N., San Dimas.

We found the firm's address. We contacted you to learn the size, color and description of the jersey you ordered and the name and number which were to appear on it.

When one letter brought no response from the firm, we wrote a second. You then received your jersey and an apology for the delay.

You didn't like the jersey and plan to return it, asking for your $4.95 back.

As we recall no refund guarantee, we'll watch the rest of this game from the bench.

Compromising situation not helped by explaining embarrassing plight

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Last Saturday four couples were having a night on the town. We ran into another friend who was cockeyed drunk. "Archie" told us he had a terrible fight with his wife and she had left him there. He wouldn't let anyone take him home because, he said, "She'll be waiting up to give me more hell and she'll keep me up all night yelling."

Big-hearted me, I gave Archie the key to my apartment. He promised to go to sleep on the couch and be out by 7:30 a.m. (I always carry a second key on a string around my neck in case I lose my purse.) I planned to use that key and creep in without disturbing him.

When I arrived home I found Archie asleep in my bed. He had taken his shoes off but had his suit on, also his shirt and necktie. I let him sleep and took the couch myself.

The next morning I got up at 10:30. Archie was still asleep in my bed. I awakened him, gave him some black coffee and sent him on his way. He had a terrific hangover but was very appreciative.

Just as he was leaving (you can imagine how he looked after having slept in his suit) the woman across the hall opened her door to get her Sunday paper. She looked at me and said, "Well! I never figured you for THAT kind!" — and bang went her door.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please accept one more letter about the 15-year-old lad who objected to taking gym showers with other boys. I agreed with you when you said there must be something wrong with the boy. A subsequent letter said the advice did not apply to girls. Why not?

Dear U.M.: In our culture girls are reared to be more modest about their bodies. (For example, in many clubs males swim in the nude. Not so with women's clubs.)

Another factor is that the bodily changes in young girls are much more noticeable than in young boys. This would make a difference to the girl who is over (or under) developed.

Where have all the boosters gone?

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

Football is being deflated. What with the National Football League's 26-team lineup starting exhibition games in early August, and the American Football League with 54 teams in six divisions and the World Football League with a rapidly dwindling 72 teams in nine departments, eight divisions and two sub-divisions, there are more football games than commercials on TV these days.

More is not necessarily better, as these pigskin promoters are learning to their sorrow. A total of 180,228 "football fans" failed to show up at NFL games over Thanksgiving. I've heard of missing persons reports, but this is ridiculous!

Through 155 games so far this season, the no-show total is $19,228, compared to 715,160 last year. And these are all people who have PAID for tickets to the game — $8-$15. Something is rotten in Denmark (and Los Angeles, Detroit and Baltimore) when people who have already laid out the moola for a ticket won't even come to watch the game.

"With two weeks remaining," said

Don Weiss, NFL information director, "our no-shows appear certain to top a million."

The powers that be, from NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle down to the waterboys, are quick to blame everything but football for the loss of interest in football. At this point, late in the season, the weather is raw and blustery as a Redskins linebacker. Some of the so-called races have been decided and the games are contests of rookies. Many people prefer to stay home and watch the game on television in the comfort of their homes. Many people prefer to stay at home and NOT watch the game.

Pete and his pals blame television; he is preparing to go to Congress to repeal the law that says any game sold out 72 hours before the first twirler drops her baton can be telecast. Be a shocker for him, won't it, when television is blacked out and the stadiums are still empty?

The feather-brained Atlanta Falcons and the be-borned Los Angeles Rams set a new and unwelcome record in Atlanta last week when 40,202 ticket-holders decided they had something better than the game.

As they say down at Malibu, "The surfeit is up!"

THE DOCTOR COMMENTS

Synthetic or not, vitamin is vitamin

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been told that biochemists, as well as medical scientists, proved many years ago that synthetic vitamins cannot become part of human tissue, because they are inorganic and the body will reject them. And, the only thing that a chemical vitamin can do is to stimulate or nudge a sick or lazy cell. Is this true?

Also, I have heard that the natural vitamins found in the stores are called "crystalline" or "altered" vitamins. In the preparation of these natural vitamins, extreme heat is used which destroys the natural enzymes and the entire molecular balance created by nature. Is this true?

In any case, which do you think is best, the "synthetic" or "natural" vitamins?

DEAR READER — Gertrude Stein put it very well when she wrote, "a rose, is a rose, is a rose." A vitamin is a vitamin, is a vitamin. I might add your letter is a treasure trove of misinformation. Unfortunately such ideas are widespread.

First, chemists consider organic those compounds that contain carbon. This includes alcohol, table sugar, oil, gas, coal, plastic and thousands upon thousands of other compounds. Inorganic are the chemical compounds that do not contain carbon, such as table salt made from the two elements, sodium and chlorine. All vitamins are organic whether they are manufactured in a laboratory or extracted from a plant or other food.

The body does not reject inorganic items. We use what salt we need, regardless of whether it comes in our milk, vegetables, meat or out of the salt shaker. Calcium, an inorganic element, is used to build our bones. So that idea is ridiculous.

Salt mined from the earth is no different than salt extracted from meat or a plant. We can't change the chemical elements. So it is with organic and synthetic vitamins. We know the chemical structure of the vitamins, including every blessed atom and how they are hooked together like a crossword puzzle. It makes no difference whether a vitamin is extracted from a plant or built in the laboratory atom by atom, so to speak. It is the same.

Natural vitamins are not destroyed by processing. The package label must reflect the final amount of the vitamins present regardless of how they are obtained. And, vitamins are not enzymes. They are used to help build some enzymes inside your body.

The form vitamins come in sometimes makes a difference. A good example here is folic acid (folacin). In the leafy vegetables it is hard to separate and absorb through the intestine. For this reason the synthetic form, unattached to other food elements, is more easily absorbed and more effective. If you extracted the folic acid from the food and used it in pure form, however, it would have the same effect.

I know this will not satisfy many people who don't want to be confused by the facts. These people will continue to pay extra money for "natural" vitamins or for a special brand name, but the truth remains: a vitamin is a vitamin, is a vitamin.

Dramatic role in TV series

Gleason returning, but not for jokes

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jackie Gleason will return to television in a series next fall starring in a dramatic show in which he hopes he will not have to crack a single joke.

The Great One, slumped down from 250 pounds to a relatively svelte 205, will star in "Panama Fargo," a two-hour mini-series.

The show is scheduled for the ABC-TV fall lineup in 1975 with eight episodes per season. Norman Lear, producer of "Maude," "All in the Family" and "Good Times," will head the project.

"And we're going to make the whole thing in Florida," said Gleason triumphantly.

He makes his home in Florida.

This year Jackie's 15-year, multimillion-dollar contract with CBS-TV ran out, freeing the hefty comedian for work elsewhere. But this time Jackie won't be looking for laughs. Not intentionally at least.

"A dramatic show was the only way for me to go," he said.

"I play the title character. He's a negotiator who can best anyone at their own game. He's a former president of his own Madison Avenue advertising firm who retires to Florida.

"Friends call him now and then to straighten out big problems. So he helps out when he feels like it. The show can cover any situation.

"I didn't want to do a detective or a doctor or a lawyer. I don't see how they can do any stories for those characters anymore. They've used them all up."

As far as Gleason is concerned the comedy writers have exhausted that field, too.

"When I agreed to do this show I felt like working, but not doing comedy," he explained. "Jokes are hard to do. And it is difficult to find new jokes if you're picky. And I'm picky."

"I just don't think it's possible to do a top comedy-variety series if you insist on quality material every week. And the guests have all been seen a thousand times on every other show."

Gleason has no anxieties about abandoning comedy for straight drama. He starred 14 years ago in "Gigot," a strictly dramatic movie.

"I think every comedian alive can play drama except Groucho Marx," said Gleason. "He's just too funny to do anything else."

"As for me, it's like two weeks in the country. Drama is a hell of a lot easier than telling jokes. You don't have to pause after the punch line waiting for a laugh."

"And we've got plenty of good equipment and facilities down in Florida for making a television series. I'm looking forward to the whole project. We should start production in January."

Will Rams pay price for Namath?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ten years ago, on Jan. 2, 1963 to be precise, Joe Namath signed a $427,000 contract with the New York Jets, making him the top paid performer in pro football.

He still is. He gets $250,000 a year from the Jets and whether he's with them again next year or whether he's with the Los Angeles Rams, he very likely will make at least that much, probably a bit more.

Joe Namath played what many consider to be his last home game ever for the Jets at Shea Stadium Sunday, turning in a masterful, titanic-like performance under wretched conditions in an accomodatingly dramatic come-from-behind 20-10 conquest of the Buffalo Bills.

On a perfectly horrible day, when a mean, hard-driving rain soaked every soul foolish enough to venture out of his warm living room, when a stinging wind from the southeast whipped up gusts as much as 30 miles per hour, and when the ooze and mud on the field made tooting a perilous, sometime thing for those who had to endure it, the 31-year-old, slope-shouldered Namath stood out there and controlled a wet, soggy football well enough to complete 8 of his 19 passes for 131 yards and two touchdowns.

If this was his local farewell, it was a fittingly appropriate one, but somehow I don't think it was.

Right now there are any number of theories afloat pertaining to Namath's future.

One is that he's going to play for the Rams next year. Another is that he'll be back with the Jets next year because he wants to be with another winner, and by winning their last five ball games, they've shown him they might be an exciting team again next year. Still another theory is that Namath may be doing the Monday night football for ABC next year. From some reports I hear, the network has decided perhaps it can struggle along without Howard Cosell next year.

Everybody keeps asking Joe Namath the same thing.

Whaddya gonna do, Joe? Where you gonna play next year?

How can Joe Namath possibly tell anybody what he's going to do when he honestly doesn't know himself?

Oh, sure, he knows what he'd like to do, but in that regard he's like so many other people you know who'd dearly love to do something but are blocked by pure circumstance.

What he'd like to do, or rather what he thinks he'd like to do, is play in a warm climate which would be more beneficial for his fragile knees, be with a team that has a shot at making the Super Bowl and one that's in an area where both the movie and TV opportunities are right next door.

Only one team fits all three descriptions and that's the Los Angeles Rams, and owner Carroll Rosenbloom definitely is interested in Joe Namath.

There's one hitch, though, and it's a big one.

Namath is playing out his option with the Jets and becomes a free agent next May 1. Say the Rams did want to sign him. They call up the Jets and ask what they want for him. The Jets say, well, we want X, Y and Z and two draft choices. The Rams then pull in their horns. In a sense it becomes a trade, and if the Rams and Jets can't get together, Commissioner Pete Rozelle steps in and specifies what the compensation will be.

Joe Namath is bound to come high; the Rams may not want to risk the compensation Rozelle would decide.

So, when all is said and done, Joe Namath winds up signing a new contract with the Jets.

Before Sunday's contest with the Bills, Namath answered some questions on the radio for former teammate Dave Herman, who asked him whether he was going to be back with the Jets next year.

"I don't know," Namath replied. "I really don't think so. I don't think I will be back."

After the contest, he was perfectly willing to talk about the game with the Bills, but he didn't want to discuss his future with the Jets. Reminded about what he had said to Herman, he said, "I meant it."

Sure he does, right now.

Phil Iselin, the Jets' president, wasn't unduly upset by what Namath said to Herman.

"He hasn't said it to me yet," he said. "Until he says it to me, I take it for granted he will come back."

Ten years ago, Joe Namath signed with the Jets for $427,000, and a few weeks ago, when he wasn't being surrounded by everybody asking him the same question, he said, "with what I know now, I would've signed to play in New York for half that much. It would've been worth my while for all the endorsements, publicity and everything else that resulted from my playing in New York."

LAST HOME GAME?

A muddy Joe Namath of the Jets fires a pass in dramatic comeback win over Buffalo

Sunday in what might have been his final home game for the Jets in Shea Stadium.

Allen boosts Lakers out of cellar

INGLEWOOD (UPI) — Lucius Allen may not be enough to bring the Los Angeles Lakers their fifth straight NBA Pacific Division title, but he's trying his best.

"I usually don't go overboard on individuals," Lakers Coach Bill Sharman said Sunday night, "but Lucius has been doing a super job for us."

"He really creates a lot of easy shots for everyone. He's so easy to work with," Connie Hawkins said of Allen, the former UCLA guard who came here Nov. 10 in the Jim Price trade with Milwaukee.

Allen scored 19 points and contributed a season high 13 assists in a 107-102 victory over the Phoenix Suns Sunday night.

The victory boosted the Lakers (11-15) back into a fourth-place tie in the Pacific Division with the Suns, who beat them 92-88 at Phoenix Saturday night.

Phoenix used a full-court press to hamper the Lakers Saturday night.

Still, Sharman was less than happy with the Lakers' performance. Gail Goodrich missed his ninth straight game with a sprained ankle.

After his club's four-point loss at Phoenix, Sharman closed the Lakers' locker room door for 10 minutes and patiently explained how to handle a press.

"The press is the weakest defense there is to break," said the Laker coach, "providing you don't make stupid mistakes. Tonight we broke it easily and it made a big difference."

The Suns tried the same tactic in the final three minutes Sunday night, but it didn't work.

"We have a spurt and then a lull," he said. "We can't seem to do anything consistently well so I'm just going with players who are performing at the time."

"I'd rather have a set lineup and a pattern of substitutions, but I just can't. Our better scorers don't rebound and our better rebounders don't score."

Los Angeles (UPI) — Los Angeles Rams' owner Carroll Rosenbloom doesn't think the World Football League will be around for a second season, but admits he could be wrong.

"The World Football League surprised me," said the former owner of the Baltimore Colts. "I never thought they would play. When they did, I was surprised."

"They've had some great troubles and misfortunes. When they started to play, I said, economically, I didn't see how they could survive and I think the same is true today. Economically, they can't survive. So I don't see how they can possibly survive."

"I don't see how they can be in existence next year, but they may surprise me and play again. But you can see that economically it's not working because nobody is getting paid."

Rosenbloom, whose Rams have won two straight NFC West championships, stressed the economic climate was different today than when the American Football League came into being in 1960.

"When the AFL started, the cost of everything was so different," he said. "In those days, your costs may have been a sixth of what they are today."

"In those days, a million dollars would let you go first class in everything. To operate a franchise today, it will cost you in excess of six million dollars. So everything has changed."

PBX Club will meet in La Verne

The PBX Club of Pomona will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the home of Pauline Judd in La Verne.

In lieu of a gift exchange among members, the women will bring educational toys to the meeting. These will be presented to the Toy Library at Pacific State Hospital, which the club has voted to support as its philanthropic project. A cash donation will also be presented to the library.

Funds for the program were raised by PBX members in various sales. Donations of new or used toys for the hospital will be accepted at the telephone office of Pacific State Hospital or by club members.

The Rev. Rex S. Wignall performed the double-ring rites uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Robert Beaupre of Brea and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Borges Hestehave of Alta Loma.

The bride's gown of candlelight lace was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline. Her veil was fingertip length.

Q. "HOW MUCH DO BABY ELEPHANTS WEIGH?"

RODNEY KELLER
REYNOLDSVILLE, PA

A NEWBORN BABY ELEPHANT MAY STAND ABOUT 3 FEET TALL AND WEIGH ABOUT 200 POUNDS.

DICK KELLER

JOHNNY WONDER'S PUZZLE BOOK: 60 pages of fun and games. Order your book now. Send $1.25 to Puzzle Book, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Of all the animals that live on land today, the elephant is the biggest. It isn't too surprising, then, to learn that a baby elephant stands about 3 feet tall and weighs about 200 pounds at birth — as much as many fully grown men weigh.

A mother elephant usually has only one young at birth. The baby elephant is often covered with woolly hair, but soon becomes nearly hairless like its parents.

The mother takes good care of her baby, nursing it on milk for its first two years and carefully watching over it for several more years. She is very protective, usually sheltering the baby beneath her huge body. She uses her trunk to tenderly caress the baby and to guide it along.

Elephants are not fully grown until they are about 25 years old. An adult bull (male) elephant may be more than 10 feet tall and weigh as much as 14,000 pounds.

Here's wonderful news! A pocket radio, camera, World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (D&L), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.
